To Dear Colonel Breckinridge: letter came to me Saturday. I am glad you told me that it would be inconvenient to come out here to the college, for if you had gone to ever such a little trouble to listen to what sometimes overburdens a school girl's mind, you might be inclined to be provoked with yourself. A preacher's op nion of any little affairs of mine would cause premature gray hairs where your opinion might clear away all doubts and fears and let me be uite free-hearted again. I think I have prepared for you a divorce case, but listen, it is worse than that. If a certain person should advance funds for my taition here at school for three years, under the promise that I marry him at the expration of the time, could be do any thing if I would not marry him, but teach and refundall he had allvanoid? know you think why the deception?
